DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 2/20/07 have been fully considered. Regarding the rejection as anticipated by view of Bolduc et al, applicant's arguments are persuasive.

Regarding the rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sideris are not persuasive. The referring to figure 3, the two sets of fingers 14 and 18 are extending radially outward from a longitudinal axis and are clearly spaced apart on opposites sides of the defect. Regarding the limitation "mounted on the portion", the Examiner again notes figure 3, wherein every element between the two sets of fingers 14 and 18 are the medial portion. It is the Examiner position that they are mounted "on" the medial portion.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 108-110, 112, and 114 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Sideris (5,433,727).

Sideris teaches:

108. (Currently Amended) A device for use in closing septal defects comprising:
a medial portion (including elements 26) having a longitudinal axis; and first and second sets of fingers 18, 14 mounted on the medial portion that are capable of extending substantially radially outward from the axis, the first and second sets of fingers unconnected to each other at the radially outward ends and being spaced an axial distance apart from each other on the axis, and wherein only one set of fingers 18 is covered by a web of material 16 between adjacent ones of the fingers.

Regarding claim 114, see figure 3. Claim 114 is interpreted as positively claiming the device for closing septal defects.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 111 and 113 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sideris teaches the device as described above, however, fails to specifically teach nitinol. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art have used nitinol for such a material for it's well known characteristics such as biocompatibility. Regarding silicone, Sideris teaches polyurethane; it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art have used silicone for such a material for it's well known characteristics such as biocompatibility.
